Think about

„You really should talk to her.“
„But I don't want to!“
Yasu sighed. She was just way too stubborn.
„Why not?“
„I just.. don't want to…“
„But - Do you wanna tell me what happened?“
„None of your business.“
Nana began to smoke her fifth cigarette even though she promised Yasu not to smoke anymore.
But it actually calmed her down. And she was really, really upset.
She guessed that it was the reason why she started smoking again.
Yasu stood up and walked to the door.
„If there's anything I can do for you - Just call me.“
„Yeah, yeah…“
And finally, he was gone and she was left alone. Again.

Then she started to think about Hachi.
Why did they even fight…?
Oh, she knew… It was because of Nana's jealousy…
But - Why was she jealous?
It was not like she was in love with Hachi. Wasn't it?

Nana closed her eyes and suddenly she could see all those memories, Hachi and Nana had together.
Those nights when she was with Hachi because Shôji broke off with her.
Those nights when Hach couldn't sleep and was with her.
Their kiss…
She blushed and opened her eyes again.
Why did their kiss feel so good?
She wasn't in love with Hachi because she was not interested in girls. At all.

But maybe, Hachi was a very exception.
Maybe that was the reason why she was so jealous.
Hachi wanted to be with Takumi, not with Nana.
But Hachi also said that Nana will be her only hero…
So why did Hachi just walk out of Nana's life~?

Nana stood up, walked to the door and wanted to go to Hachi, wanted to tell her what was the matter with her when she finally saw Hachi's face again.
„I.. I broke off with Takumi.“
But Hachi didn't look that sad at all.
„Because I finally realized that I already have you.“
Nana just grabbed Hachi's arm, pulled her very close to her and whispered: „And I will never ever leave you…“
And then, they kissed again.
